- 2007 Senior research professorship (TU Kaiserslautern)

¹ The scheme of Assistant-Professorship, which gives the young scientist a large degree of independence, is firmly established in the US. It was introduced in Germany in the early 70'ies but abandoned again about 10 years later - to the disadvantage of German science. A high level international commission, which has recently reviewed the German Science System and the related funding structure strongly recommend to return to that scheme. In fact the concept of the so called "Juniorprofessor" has been introduced in 2003, but remains a topic of controversial discussion in Germany.
